

New Yorkers For A Day

Sponge Fishing in Nassau is an Island Sport as Well as a Business Occupation and Produces a Revenue of More Than a Million a Year—Oil Business is Prospering, Says a Texas Expert—Georgian Wants Government Aid for Cotton Growers, Who Are in the Dumps.

How would you like to go sponge-fishing?

The sponge does not rise to the bait; neither can he be trapped nor tempted, but there is such a thing as sponge-fishing, nevertheless, and it is extremely profitable, according to R. G. Collins of Nassau, Bahama Islands, who is at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

"The family sponge has passed out of the modern ideas of sanitation," he admitted, "but it exists in some homes, though it is not so ubiquitous as formerly. However, sponges are in great demand for commercial purposes, and more sponges are exported from the little island of Nassau, which has only twenty-seven square miles of area, than from any other place in the world."

"The sponge is an animal—one of the lowest forms of animal life—and the part which is used is really the bony structure of the living being. They live mainly at the bottom of the sea, but almost all sponge-fishing is done in waters from six to fifty feet deep. Those which live at a greater depth are practically out of reach."

"Five hundred small boats go out from the Bahamas for trips of from six to eight weeks. The waters thereabouts are so beautifully clear and blue that one can see clearly to a great depth."

"For sponge-fishing they use a bucket with a glass bottom, which reflects the floor of the ocean as well as light will penetrate. When the sponges are located, a small hooked pole is lowered and they are picked off and drawn up. They are a dark, dirty brown when brought up, and then they are laid in the sun. The animal dies, and the substance shrivels up. The value of sponges exported from Nassau each year amounts to from $700,000 to $1,500,000."

"The English workman does not burn property or destroy it when he strikes," according to Miss Hannah M. Parkin, daughter of the proprietor of a coal colliery in Yorkshire, who arrived in town yesterday. "He is willing to state his rights, as he sees them, and is content to await the outcome."

George Dracopoulos, recently appointed Consul of Greece at New York, has arrived at the Hotel Macdonald from Washington. He served there for three years as Secretary of the Greek Legation. He said yesterday that under the new Immigration Law, which limits immigration here to 2 per cent. of a country's population according to the census of 1910, Greece's quota would be about 3,500.

"The oil business is picking up," said Dan Willard, Texas oil man, who is in New York. "Companies in Texas are doing very well, and I have just learned of a new oil strike in Kentucky which may prove to be the source of a tremendous supply."

Mrs. Maynard M. Rudder of Usine Ste. Maude, Trinidad, tells us that the sugar cane business is rapidly being eliminated from the island made famous by asphalt.

"Sugar cane in Trinidad requires much more cultivation than in the other islands of the West Indies," she asserts. "Almost every person who lives in Trinidad is now drilling, hoping to find oil on his property. I believe that before many years have passed, oil and not sugar will be the principal product of the island."

"I know of the unspeakable shock brought about by the abnormal post-war conditions," said the Hon. William D. Upshaw, Congressman from Georgia, who is at the Hotel Pennsylvania, "but I know, too, that no calamity has happened to the normal base of supply which should bring the cotton growers of the South to the despondency from which they now suffer. Their depression is shown in unplanted fields, in the homes and homes which were once pulling the plough, and which are now turned out to graze or starve."

"The Government should come to the rescue of the American farmer, for everyone knows that the prosperity of the country depends on the farmer, and until his condition is relieved, we shall not have prosperity."

HERE'S ONE FROM GEORGIA.

"A friend of mine at home is an ardent fisherman," said H. L. McDuff, of Atlanta, at the Biltmore. "The family went for the summer to a lake resort and the man of the house went fishing, promising to be back at six with enough fish for supper. He got nary a bite all the afternoon, and on his way home he did what so many other fishermen have been tempted to do. He stopped at the fish store and bought some fish which had been brought in by one of the town's youthful anglers."

"At home, without any ostentation, he put them in the ice box, and went into the kitchen, where his wife was getting ready for supper.

"I left the fish in the ice box," he told her.

"A few minutes later, he came back and said, 'Well, what did you think of the fish I caught?'"

"Very nice indeed," said his wife, who was busy frying. "I caught mine with a dollar bill. What bait did you use?"

"And then he learned that his wife, who was taking no chances on his catch, had gone to the store and bought some of the identical lot."

Five New York hotels sell 182,400 railroad tickets annually and handle 718,400 pieces of baggage.

POLICE HERO DIES.

WOULD GUARD IMMIGRANTS.

Davis Plans to Prevent Radicals Influencing Them.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 9.—James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, speaking before the Biennial Convention of the Foresters of America here today, declared it was his ambition to "humanize" his department and one of the principal things he has in mind is to have the naturalization laws changed so applicants may be given their papers without delay.

He also is planning, he said, to prevent immigrants coming under the influence of radicals after they reach this country. The best effort of his department, the Secretary added, would be used in the interest of women employed in industry.

Tests That Prove Muslin Quality

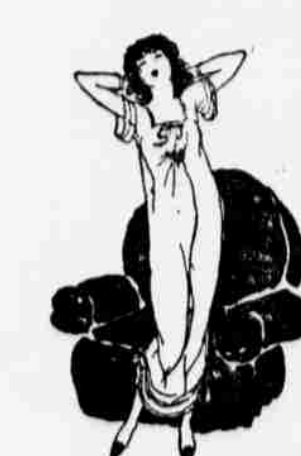

Perhaps you have bought muslin that looked fine in the store, but appeared thin as cheese-cloth after washing. That muslin was adulterated with chalk. Sometimes this powder is added so cunningly that your only test is thorough washing.

Other times the chalk is added so coarsely that you can detect it when buying. Just make this simple test: Rump the muslin briskly—the fine white powder will fall on the counter.

Fruit of the Loom is a high-quality muslin that will stand the most severe tests.

Fruit of the Loom Muslin

Washing after washing does not harm its fine, smooth texture or firm body, for it is all muslin without filler. Be reasonably careful that the soap is rinsed out and it will stay as white as the day you bought it.

Ask for Fruit of the Loom when you are buying muslin by the yard and also in buying ready-made sheets, pajamas, men's and boys' shirts, etc., as leading manufacturers are now using this standard muslin. Look for the label. Every good store has it.
